Art Unit: 1657

In view of the amended claim and Applicant's arguments, the rejection under 35 USC § 102 (b) is hereby withdrawn.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 4-9 are newly rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sock et al. (previously cited)

Sock et al. teach detecting enzymes using a positively charged nylon (bibulous positively charged substrate as claimed-see abstract) coupled with a tetrazolium salt (thiazolyl blue-see page 311 abbreviations used; note it is water soluble as noted by Sigma). In this method, "auxiliary enzymes" including glucose oxidase (analyte oxidase) and malate dehydrogenase (analyte dehydrogenase) are preimmobilized on the positively charged membranes, see abstract (analyte oxidizing signal producing system). The assay uses phenazine methosulfate (PMS) and NAD(P)H as electron transfer agents, and NADH or NAD(P)H as enzyme cofactors (see Figs 1 and 2 on page 311). A reagent composition is encompassed by this method since the same enzyme detection mechanism is used in the enzyme-coupled assays of Sock et al. as is claimed.

Art Unit: 1657

Sock does not teach a solid support in the composition.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the composition of Sock by using the solid support because Sock teaches that solid support can be used as carriers for enzyme detection (page 311, right column, lines 2-4). One would have been motivated to make the modification for the obvious benefit of providing support/carrier for enzyme detection, and would reasonably have expected success in view Sock's teaching that affixing of protein to matrices for detection of enzyme has been described (page 311, left column, 1st full paragraph).

From the teachings of the references, it is apparent that one of ordinary skill in the art would have had a reasonable expectation of success in producing the claimed invention. Therefore, the invention as a whole was prima facie obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made, as evidenced by the references, especially in the absence of evidence to the contrary.

Double Patenting

Applicant's arguments filed 12/1/2006 have been fully considered, in view of the amended claims, the rejection under a statutory type (35 USC 101) double patenting is hereby withdrawn. However, see the new obviousness Double Patenting rejection below.

Non-statutory Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claim 1 is rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claim 9 of U.S. Patent No. 6420128. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the test strip in claim 9 of Patent'128 requires support/carrier for the positively charged substrate for the benefit of direct application of the test strip, and the present amended claim 1 require a solid support.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
